Greetings!

We hope you are off to a great summer. Please check our website, gardensoft.com for back-issues of newsletters that have help information on making better use of your PlantMaster and GardenWorks, and computer tips.

Just scroll down to the bottom of the homepage and click on "users section".

Exchanging Projects Between 2 Users

Sometimes, two designers may collaborate on one project. You can share your plant list, information and pictures by emailing a PlantMaster project and plant pictures.

How to do this:

- Both designers need to own PlantMaster
- One designer (the sender) can create a project
- The sender can also export all the plant pictures from the project to the hard drive
- These pictures can be zipped up for easy emailing
- The sender can email the project to the receiver
- The sender can also email the plant pics to the receiver
- The receiver can import the project into her/his PlantMaster
- The receiver can also import the pictures into PlantMaster, using the Photo Management Tool.

With the export button found in the Project Info section, the sender can easily share the project (plant list and accompanying plant data) with the receiver. After the plant pics have been exported to the hard drive, those jpgs can also be sent to the receiver via email.

No newsletter during the summer! It will resume in the fall.

Sincerely,

Anne Chilcott
